CONDEMNS POLICY OF RECIPROCITY

PRESIDENT OF FARMER'S INSTITUTE AT EVANSVILLE ATTACKED TAFT'S PLAN.

MANUFACTURERS PROTECTED

Speaker Said Interests Were Looked After But Not the Farms—Large Crowd at Opening of Institute Today.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Evansville, Wis., March 3.—President W. W. Gillies in a speech at the opening of the Farmer's Institute here today, condemned President Taft's reciprocity agreement with Canada, declaring it work for the benefit of manufacturers, giving them protection, and the farmer free trade. The opening session this morning was largely attended and the president's speech, which opened the program, was full of helpful ideas and enthusiastically received. He set forth the object of the institute as improvement: to bring about lighter burdens for the farmer; to produce improvements in like stock and farm and to follow the changes of demand and fads of the consumer. Its purpose is to bring about an improvement in the soil, cultivation and the care of crops, social conditions, education, better sanitation and more luxuries for the farmer. He advocated co-operation and illustrated it by the benefits of co-operative creameries and co-operative insurance. The high cost of living was taken up by Mr. Gillies in his speech and the statement made that the farmer was not getting the benefit of the high prices.

Political conditions were also considered by the speaker, who said that it was to the farmer that the people of the country look for an improvement in politics. Reference was made to the action of the senate at Washington and the situation in Illinois.

With regard to local conditions he spoke of the creamery and canning factory located in Evansville. Mr. Gillies told of the advance of the prices in cattle and predicted a bright future for the canning factory, with great benefits to the community. The main objections to life on a farm were given as isolation and the difficulty in securing and retaining efficient help.

M. J. Seaver of Madison was to have been the next speaker on the morning program, but he was unable to be present and speak then on account of missing a train.

William Optiz of Elkhorn discussed the subject, "Marsh Land, Its Use and Management." He covered the problem as to whether drainage of marshes was profitable to the farmer. It was pointed out that the difficulty with marshes was due to excess water—that the land was kept cold, being too soft to work, and that the water absorbed the heat of the sun which the land should have had to prevent the air from penetrating among the particles of earth. He called attention to the location of protection ditches, claiming the excess water was the overflow from hard land and that ditches should be so placed as to prevent water from entering the marsh.

This afternoon the discussion of drainage was taken up by Mr. Seaver of Madison in a discussion of tuberculous by Martin Ames; and others; "County Roads," by Mrs. O. C. Colony; "The Farmer As a Business Manager," by D. H. Otis of Madison.

FIRE DAMAGED HOME ON JACKSON STREET

Patrick Connors Sustained Loss of About $275 on Home and Contents Today—False Alarm Turned In.

Fire damaged the home of Patrick Connors at the corner of Riverside and South Jackson streets to the extent of about $200 and a loss of about $75 was sustained on damage done to the furniture. The blaze was discovered about 11:15 this morning and an alarm turned in from box 62. When the department arrived, the blaze was burning briskly but it was finally put out with the use of one stream of hose and the two chemical extinguishers. There was no one in the house at the time and the cause is unknown.

Escaping steam from the rear of the home of John A. Goehle on Madison street, just at the rear of the Woods store, gave a passerby the impression that the place was on fire, and without further investigation an alarm was turned in from box 16. The call was received at the fire station about a quarter to ten this morning.

OBITUARY.

MICHIGAN FORESTS WERE DESCRIBED

By Miss Grace Mount in An Address Before the Students of the High School This Morning.

Miss Grace Mount, instructor of English in the local high school, spoke this morning to the students of the high school on the natural beauty and enrichment of the primal forests of the Northern Peninsula of Michigan.

Miss Mount spent a part of last summer's vacation in these forests at what is called "Hughes' Resort," located in a great lake region, there being twenty-two small, but beautiful lakes within a radius of nine miles. It is separated from civilization by thirty miles of almost trackless forests. At this resort were gathered people of all occupations, there to enjoy the abundant fishing and the beauties of nature. The resort was a true lumberjack and no one who came in contact with him could help but see that in him there lay a true spirit of manliness and brotherly love. On the return from this paradise the party tramped through the woods to the vast tracts of land desolated by last July's fires.

There they saw what great destruction carelessness will reap and also the vast lumbering companies are making on our comparatively small forest. The demand and need of forestry was there brought forcibly to light, for from the experiences of northern Africa and Venezuela, America should know what to expect if this waste is allowed to go on and conservation is neglected. All other foreign countries have taken great steps toward conservation, while the United States has done comparatively little and has been left way behind. But even if the United States did take steps toward greater conservation, who can not succeed until every person in the United States will co-operate with her, for conservation can not be caused by a native alone; conservation can not be caused by a state alone and conservation can not be caused by an individual alone, but it must be by the earnest efforts of each and everyone.

Forum-Rock. Yesterday afternoon by the close score of 11 to 9 the Forum won a fourth game of basketball from the Rock. The game was the fifth of the Forum Rock Inter-School series. They now stand the Forum have won four games and the Rock one game. The Forum entered the game with the determination to blot out their recent defeat at the hands of the Rock and to make it the first, last and only defeat ever received.

Neither of the Forum or the Rock Literary Societies will hold a regular meeting next Monday night as the Inter-School Debate is scheduled for that evening.

Meet Evansville Tonight. This afternoon the Janesville high school basketball team will journey to Evansville to meet the boys of the Cut-off city. This is the last game of Janesville's regular schedule.

SECOND DAY OF THE FARMERS' INSTITUTE

Dairy Products and Dairy Cattle Subject of Interesting Discussions Today.

(By Staff Correspondent.) Footville, March 3.—Today's session of the farmers' institute yesterday's. This morning Mr. Stiles took up the question of clover and corn, followed by Mr. Nichols, who had "Creameries" for his subject, and E. L. Arnold, who explained the dairy laws. This afternoon G. F. Commins gave a fine address on co-operation, and Mr. Stiles had "Good Cows" for his topic, and the session closed with Mr. Nichols' talk on "Alfalfa."

Yesterday afternoon Mr. C. E. Matthews of Pewaukee, Wisconsin, an experienced poultry man, talked on poultry and its value to the farmer. Mr. Matthews spoke from the standpoint of one in the business for its profit and not as a fancier, but what he said applied to the poultry business in general. Although the poultry business holds a very important place on the farm, many farmers fail to realize its value and even give it less care and attention than their other stock. For if the poultry business is neglected it will bring the farmer no profit and in this day and generation, the profit is what the farmer wants most.

The value of poultry marketed in 1910 reached $575,000,000 in the United States. Of this the farmers received about one half and the poultry men the rest. But still the farmers are not getting their share of the profit, simply because they do not understand marketing poultry products. They always sell their surplus stock in the fall and thereby lose their profits, for the fall is not the time to market, as wild game is preferred by buyers. The right time to market is from the first of June to the last of August. No fowls to be kept in the yard all year for laying purposes.

"There is no profit in late spring or summer hatching, therefore nothing but early chicks should be raised for they begin to lay in early winter when eggs are high priced. It is a known fact that there is four times more profit in early hatched pullets than in summer ones. Still early chicks will not make early layers unless they are given proper attention. One of the greatest dangers in raising chickens is in stunting them. There are two ways in which they may be stunted: first, in misfeed and in bad care; second, in housing them with older stock. To prevent this they should be placed in colony houses away from the older stock. Poultry are stunted by allowing the chicks to crowd together at night in one dense mass. The innermost chickens become over heated and as a result the feathers do not grow. To prevent this roosts should be placed in their roosting quarters so they will have to spread out. "The house itself should be large, giving each chick large space to exercise in. It should be divided into two parts, one a scratching room and the other a roosting room. The scratching room should be covered with litter four or five inches deep in which the chickens may dig for their food. Plenty of grit should be provided and water should be kept constantly before them. "Vermin must be watched for and everything kept sanitary. Roosts should not be nailed to the wall but hung free. All exposed surfaces should be white washed every once in awhile. "Everything is kept in a sanitary condition no vermin need be feared."

After Mr. Matthews' address, Mr. McKerron spoke to the assembly on the subject of sheep. In this talk he brought out the value of sheep to a farmer, and emphasized important points in breeding and raising. He also impressed the value of sheep to the farm.

Following Mr. McKerron, Mr. Nichols spoke on alfalfa and the value of alfalfa to the dairyman. He pointed out that it was a great food saver and increased the flow of milk from any dairy cow.

In the evening a short program was given by the social committee, which was enjoyed by all who heard it. There was music by an orchestra: Song—2d and 3d grades; Address—Supt. O. D. Antisdel; Reading—Josephine Tallard; Vocal Solo—Clifton Fish; Reading—Hazel Buckings; Vocal Solo—Dollie Strang; Reading—Baby Spencer; Address—W. F. Stiles; Reading—Stella Mehan; Music—Orchestra.

"DARK HORSE" CHOSEN

MONTANA ELECTS HENRY L. MYERS, DEMOCRAT, SENATOR.

Name Is Not Mentioned During Preceding 60 Days of Deadlock—Succeeds Thomas H. Carter.

Helena, Mont., March 3.—Henry L. Myers, judge of the district court of Ravalli county, was elected United States senator to succeed Thomas H. Carter.

He received every Democratic vote, or a total of 53 votes, against 45 for Carter and three scattering Republican votes. Myers is a native of Missouri, and is about forty-five years old. He is a married man and has a daughter. He removed to the Bitter Root valley from Missouri in 1892, and was elected county attorney two years later. He was re-elected in 1895 and elected to the state senate in 1896. He was appointed by Governor Toole in 1907 and re-elected as judge in 1908.

The election came on the twenty-seventh ballot and his name had never been mentioned during the entire 60 days until that time, when it was suggested by the western Montana delegates. Soon afterwards others began to change and before the vote was announced every Democrat had cast his vote for the new senator.

LAST NUMBER OF CLINTON
CITIZENS' LECTURE COURSE

Miss Sarah Mildred Willmer Presented the Sign of the Cross Last Evening.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Clinton, March 3.—Miss Sarah Mildred Willmer closed the Citizen's lecture course here last night, presenting the "Sign of the Cross." It was without doubt the most artistic piece of work ever given here and the immense audience which completely filled the large auditorium of the Baptist church were held perfectly spellbound for an hour and a half. A large majority of her audience were moved to tears at her vivid portrayal of the sufferings of the martyred Christians under Nero.

A Prosperous Season.

The lecture course experienced the most prosperous year of its existence. The course was by far the most expensive and all bills are paid and a cash balance of from $25 to $50 remains which will be used for the purchase of extra good talent next year.

Mrs. Crowley returned to her home in Danisco, Illinois, after a few days visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. St. Hils.

At the Methodist church on Sunday morning, Rev. G. N. Foster will preach on a theme taken from Solomon's library.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Keenan passed away at their home last night. Its age was two months. Funeral at the home on Saturday by Rev. G. N. Foster of the M. E. church.

The next number of our lecture course occurs on Friday evening, March 10, and is by the college singing girls.

The Sunday school of the M. E. church gave a social this evening for the members this evening.

SIGNALS WELL KNOWN

WHISTLES TRAIN AS A, B, C TO THE TRAINMEN.

One Especially That Will Bring Them From Their Beds Miles Away—Most Important and Dreaded of Them All.

When a train is approaching a grade crossing the locomotive warns pedestrians and teams of its coming by two long and two short explosions from its steam dome. This warning is not always heard by those in the vicinity of the crossing.

The wind may carry the sound of the crossing. The wind may be blowing in an opposite direction to that from whence the alarm proceeds or the prospective victim may be so deeply absorbed with his own thoughts that the warning goes unheeded, and his life pays the forfeit.

At unguarded crossings the driver of a team will hear the alarm, but, believing he has time to cross, whip up his horse, only to find that he has made a fatal calculation. This blame for accidents of this kind is always levelled at the railroad, and there usually follows a demand for the elimination of the death trap.

When a train is approaching a station or a junction with another road both may be operated by the same company, one-long whistle is blown, the duration being about four seconds.

This is supposed to give sufficient warning to employees to look after their safety and also to the thoughtless passenger or trespasser to give the oncoming locomotive a wide berth.

Eight short blasts from the locomotive, with only half a second between, is a warning to the crew that there is danger ahead. It may be that a red flag is seen burning up the track or that some one has signalled to the engineer to come to a stop. He may have seen the tail lights of a stalled freight or a bowler lying across the rails, the result of a landslide.

The signal that makes every railroad man within hearing distance sit up and take notice is one long blast followed by three short ones. This is the fire alarm, and every loyal railroad worker who hears it will make haste to reach the scene of trouble and lend his aid in the work of saving life and property. It is frequently the case that the engineer of trains will discover an incipient blaze along the tracks or in a freight yard and he immediately gives the whistle alarm.

There is a number of other steam signals, but as they are of interest only to the men employed by the railroad reference to them is omitted.

There is a whistle signal, however, that is given from the tower located in the center of a station yard, which brings everything to a dead standstill within this area of a complicated trackage. Something has gone wrong with the pneumatic mechanism that works the signals and the switches, or the wheels of a coach or a locomotive have slipped from the iron, which necessitates the calling of a halt until an investigation can be made.

This whistle is sounded about once a month, and when it is heard there is a general feeling of apprehension among all the employees that something dreadful has happened.

Sticks to Blazing Engine.

With the woodwork of the cab ablaze and a shower of sparks streaming behind, Engineer Goodwin drove a Boston and Maine locomotive with six crowded passenger cars attached into the Franklin station, says a Malden (Mass.) dispatch. The passengers had no feeling of trouble until they heard the fire engine. Firemen extinguished the blaze and the train proceeded.

The engineer said that a broken pipe had allowed water to fall into the firebox, causing a small explosion, which threw hot coals back into the cab. Although burned about the face and hands, the engineer stuck to his post.

The Sense of Duty.

A sense of duty pursues us ever. It is omnipresent like the Deity. If we take to ourselves the wings of the morning, and dwell in the afternoon parts of the sea, duty performed or duty violated is still with us, for our happiness or our misery. If we say the darkness shall cover us, in the darkness as in the light our obligations are with us yet.—Daniel Webster.

WISCONSIN WEATHER FORECAST.

Cloudy and unsettled tonight and Saturday; colder tonight.

TO ALL READERS

The Gazette is anxious to bring each of its readers into closer touch with both the paper and each other. It would like to have them feel free to send in news items. Notices of parties, personal mentions, happenings in your own community, accidents that may occur—in fact anything that you think would interest other readers.

Matters of this nature can be telephoned to the editorial rooms. Call Rock county telephone 62, or Wisconsin phone 77 three rings.

Meetings of lodges, church gatherings, and special meetings of clubs it will be necessary to have written out and left at or mailed to the Gazette to avoid mistakes which might otherwise occur.

The columns of the paper are also open to communications on subjects of interest. Write your views of affairs on one side of the paper. Be sure and sign your name. It will not be published if you do not wish it to, and either leave or mail to the office. Try this system and you will be surprised how much more interesting the reading of the evening paper becomes to you.

THE CANADIAN PROBLEM.

We are told by this morning's Washington dispatches that the present session of congress will expire a graceful death and the question of the Canadian reciprocity will not have been decided upon. As the press of the country have been discussing the matter pro and con for some weeks, since President Taft first submitted his proposed treaty to the congressional leaders, the center of interest now lies in the question of what the extra session of congress will do with the matter. The press dispatches also announce that this extra session will be called by March 20th to handle this and other important matters that the filibustering tactics of the senators have left undone. This means a long, drawn-out fight and it is of interest to see just where the money interests of the country stand as regards it. The Wall Street Journal is an open advocate of the treaty and recently discussed it as follows:

"There is a certain aspect of unreality about the opposition to Canadian reciprocity, and particularly that in the United States senate. Senator McCumber, for instance, devoted some hours of a pleasant Saturday afternoon to exposing the possibilities of injury to the American farmer. His diatribes were not brilliant, but his illustrations were sometimes amusing, and his tabular illustrations of the actual cost in farm produce, based upon what the farmer gets, measured by what the casual visitor to a hotel pays, was effective and on its popular appeal will have a wide circulation.

"Analysis of that speech, however, and of many like it elsewhere, discloses one fact which the distinguished senator from North Dakota would be glad to conceal. The fear of the standpoint element is not that the farmer will be hurt, but that he may find so little injury resulting from the free exchange of commodities across our northern frontier that he may wish to see it extended in other directions. Senator McCumber's utterance echoed when he described the wiles and daughters of local farmers waking him up at 4:30 in the morning, by bringing their produce to the central market.

In Washington past his door. This at least should be reformed. United States senators are commonly safer asleep.

"Equally, Senator Cummins is worried less about the possible evil than the possible good. The agreement arrived at between the Administration and the representatives of the Dominion must be passed as it stands without amendment. When Senator Cummins proposed to add to the concessions made to Canada the free import of manufactured articles, he knows, without being told so by Senator Root, that such a concession made voluntarily would have to be extended to all other countries under the 'most favored nation' rule. In his heart of hearts the senator from Iowa knows that a demand for a reciprocity not likely to be conceded has been his stock in trade since the death of President McKinley, he does not like to see his small political capital taken away.

"Temperate observers will have noticed one striking feature of the discussions on the reciprocity agreement, common both to Canada and this country. Its opponents on each side of the border declare that their respective countries are conceding everything and receiving nothing. If this is not proof positive of a thoroughly equitable exchange, it would be difficult to say what is."

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Arguments pro and con relative to the Merchant Marine has brought forth much spread eagle discussion on the former glories of the United States as mistress of the seas. Tales are told of the days of the Baltimore clipper, the vessels built in Maine that sailed around the world, the whaling fleets of New Bedford and the glory of past decades.

A newspaper so pronouncedly republican and as admittedly orthodox with regard to republican policies as the New York Tribune may be safely taken as an authority by any one who is desirous of learning why nearly fifty years of republican rule in this country have failed to restore an American merchant marine to the high seas. In answer to a pointed question on the subject, our contemporary frankly admits that there can be no dispute as to the statement that American ships are handicapped in competition with the ships of other maritime nations for the carrying trade of the world. For in order to fly the American flag a ship must have been built in this country or it must have been admitted to register by act of congress; the cost of shipbuilding in this country is greater than in Great Britain or Germany, because wages and building materials are higher here; American navigation laws compel shipowners to pay higher wages to seamen and higher salaries to officers than are paid on foreign ships.

Two points only are presented here, as a matter of fact, namely, the higher cost of the American ship and the higher cost of its operation. The first cost of the vessel might be considerably greater than the investment required of the foreign shipowner for similar construction, but if the earnings were satisfactory this difference would soon be wiped out. The whole difficulty, then, seems to lie in the greater cost of operating an American vessel. This greater cost, we are told, is the reason why American capital does not seek investment in American ocean-going shipping. Americans, it is admitted, by abandoning the protective policy might lower the cost of building and operating ships, but we are quickly assured that the people of this country would be averse to lowering wages to the foreign level, and would "undoubtedly prefer letting the foreign trade go to breaking down the protective system."

Our contemporary holds that Americans cannot have protection and all of its attendant benefits and have a merchant marine also, and that an American is bound to cling to the protective policy, the logical conclusion would seem to be that there is nothing to be done as regards the absence of their flag from the seas save to reconcile themselves to the hopelessness of the situation. But, of course, there will be no such reconciliation. It will not be shamelessly confessed by the American people that they lack the ability and determination to solve this problem. Every constructive effort put forth so far in behalf of the merchant marine has met with discouragement and opposition from quarters in which there has been a manifest indisposition to do anything to effect a removal of the handicap or any part of it. But, although obstacles in the way of a satisfactory solution of the problem are many and serious, they are not insurmountable.

HOME INDUSTRIES.

Patronizing home industries is one of the cardinal principles of prosperity. Lack of it spells ruin to any institution. There is nothing that succeeds like success and success can only be obtained by hard work. Two local firms have recently purchased motor delivery trucks from a firm that manufactures them in this city. It is a mark of approval which the citizens of Janesville place upon their own home industry.

Janesville has shoe factories, clothing factories, underwear factories, woolen mills, cotton mills, and other institutions all manufacturing articles that are in daily use. There is nothing like helping the home industries along than by support of a financial nature.

"Janesville for Janesville People" might be as good a slogan as "You'll Succeed in Janesville."

Years ago when this nation was struggling in its infancy in the first few years of the eighteenth century, there was a young manufacturer in a New England community that made a piece of broadcloth. He took it to a merchant in his home town and offered it to him far below the cost of the imported stuff. His offer was refused and he later sold it to a buyer in a larger city.

A few weeks later the same merchant called the young manufacturer in to see some new samples of foreign broadcloth he had just purchased in the city, told the prices with pride, how he had obtained a bargain, and asked his opinion of it.

What was his surprise when the manufacturer turned the goods over and showed the astonished merchant that his foreign broadcloth had been manufactured but a few doors from his store and was the same piece of goods he had refused a few weeks previously at a far less price than he had paid for it when purchased as "foreign" made goods.

Boost Janesville and the home industries and you help your own business. The Industrial and Commercial club is trying to instill this idea in the minds of the citizens and they need the moral and financial support of all who are interested in seeing Janesville grow.

It is to be regretted that Janesville people do not appreciate the offerings that are presented to them at the Myers theatre. The dancing last evening of Countess de Salsky was a class of art that has never before been witnessed in this city. It was an entertainment that was an education to all who witnessed it. Refined, poetic and cultured it portrayed music and dancing of the highest type. Lack of support of such entertainments will lead to the cutting off of Janesville from the list of cities that are to be visited by future attractions. This is a hardship upon those who can not afford to go to the cities to witness such performances and discourages the local management of the theatre in seeking to bring the best entertainments possible to the city.

It is not until a man gets into politics that he learns how cruel the public can be. Slight references to his past, however clear it may have been, often lead to exaggerated stories that might be taken to reflect upon his honesty and integrity of purpose. It is more true in local municipal affairs and that is one reason why Janesville should adopt a law which would do away with party strife.

The Chicago papers that opposed Lormier and tried to convict him before the courts of even the United States senate had an opportunity to judge the case, are now trying and convicting all the senators who voted that he retain his seat. Talk about yellow snick-making methods!

The state legislature is still busy with that Stephenson matter. One would think that when the kettle wanted to boil like pot black it would first at least be thoroughly scoured so as to shine with redoubled brilliancy.

I have a home where peace abides,
A cheap job-village above the door;
The fig trees shade the cottage sides—
What millionaire could easy chair's beside the fire, my slippers waiting for my feet;

And I inspired I have my lyre, to twang some anthems and repeat.
When I come home, all tired and worn my dear ones greet me at the door, straightway sounds the dinner horn, what bank account could purchase more? I have a goodly appetite, and lots of room beneath my belt; I want the victuals left and right, demolishing a wand long felt. And there is cheerful talk the while, and music when the meal is o'er, and all around could ask for more? When I am sick the neighbors come, and beg a chance to help me out; they bring me pills and chewing gum, and honest tea and pie and kraut. They load me down with kindly deeds, so long as I am sick and sore, and minister to all my needs—whose roll of dough

Objected to Name: Arthur G. Richards who lives on Holmes street in this city objected to the name of A. Richards which was given as the name of the young man who had turned in the false alarm Wednesday night. If Allen Richards had been used instead any confusion would have been avoided.

Masons Attention: Special meeting of Western Star Lodge No. 14, P. & A. M., Saturday night at 7 o'clock. Work in A. A. and M. M. degrees. Refreshments. All masons cordially invited.

Testimony Continued: Further testimony in the civil suit of Lillian Becker against the Recorder Printing company, arising over a subscription contest, was offered in Justice Tallman's court this afternoon. The case was continued to today at two o'clock from yesterday afternoon.

Hearing On Monday: The hearing of Gust Glyland, alias Gundersen, who was arrested in Beloit recently by U. S. Deputy Marshal William H. Appleby, will come up before U. S. Court Commissioner Stanley Tallman on Monday. Glyland is charged with sending obscene matter through the mail, and is wanted at Fargo, S. D.

Waterproof Shingles.
Shingles are now made under a patented process from asbestos fiber and portland cement. Owing to the enormous pressure under which the shingles are manufactured, it is said that they absorb, when fresh, only about five per cent. of their weight of water; and when exposed to the atmosphere for a year or two that hydration and subsequent crystallization make them absolutely impermeable.

No Wonder.
The auto wheel assumed a proud look. "I have just been on a 25,000-mile trip," it bragged.
"I don't wonder you are tired," murmured a shy cart wheel.

Bird and Insect Weavers.
The art of weaving, tape and net-making is practiced by some of the lower forms of life, notably among caterpillars and spiders. The weaver birds of Africa and India, which are a species of finch, construct wonderful nests out of leaves by sewing them together.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN CITY POLITICS

Edward J. Schmidley Has Taken Out His Papers For Alderman of the First Ward On Democratic Ticket.

Another candidate entered the field today for the position as alderman of the First Ward, Edward J. Schmidley taking out his papers for the Democratic nomination. He probably will be the only opponent to Joseph Weber, Jr., republican who has already filed his papers, as no others have signified their intention of entering the race and but two days remain for the filing of the nomination papers. Joseph L. Dear Republican and Joseph Deming, Democrat, are entered as candidates for the nomination as supervisors from the Third and Fourth wards respectively. Returns were today made of nomination papers from the First Ward for Dr. S. H. Buckmaster, candidate on the Republican ticket for the position as school commissioner at large.

THREE DRUNKS BROUGHT UP IN MUNICIPAL COURT

Two Paid Small Fines While Michael O'Garra Was Sent To Jail For Ten Days.

Five days that with a fine of $2 and costs, or five additional days in jail, was the sentence imposed by Judge Fildes today on Michael O'Garra, who was arraigned today for drunkenness. O'Garra had been brought up in court a number of times before on the same charge and the judge warned him to mend his ways or a sentence of six months would have to be imposed. O'Garra went down for the full time.

Two others were taken into court this morning with O'Garra, George Long of Clarno, who came here to north with an emigrant train, found Janesville schools so alluring he could not leave them and stayed over for a short time this morning to donate three dollars to the city treasury. In payment of a fine of $2 and costs.

Called by the dreadfulness of life in the country, A. Macomson, a farmer living near Janesville, sought relief from his mind, and set about to buy the bottled variety of ether. It took a party near all the money he had, but he eventually gave the same amount as long, it being the purchase price of his liberty.

A Motor Servile.
With slight modification the boy's criticism in his essay on the horse might be applied to the motor-car—namely, that "the horse is a noble animal, but he does not always do so." The motor-car is the servant of vast numbers of people, but it is sometimes allowed to behave in a manner which is objectionable.

A Child's Comment.
Even little children are amazed at the backwardness of New York. A bright youngster of five, crossing over from New Jersey and seeing the West street transportation relic for the first time, jerked her father's coat-tail nearly off, exclaiming: "Oh, papa, see the trolley cars being pulled by horses!"—N. Y. Press.

MERELY IN IGNORANCE OF THE TRUE FACTS

Last Evening's Beloit Free Press Makes Mistake As to Janesville Tax Figures.

Forgetting that Janesville has two telephone companies each doing more business than the combined one of Beloit, the Beloit Free Press last evening published figures, which were copied by another newspaper, in which they tried to show that the Beloit company had more gross earnings than the Janesville company had. Both the Free Press and the paper that copied, forgot Janesville has two phone systems and only figured one, the Wisconsin company. The Rock county company paid $552.62 in taxes, which is 2½ per cent of 85 per cent of their gross earnings. This Beloit company paid but $588.70 of their gross earnings or 63.92 less than the Janesville company. The Wisconsin Telephone company of this city, however, paid $677.55 or four per cent taxation. This brings the total for the two companies' payments to the city of Janesville up to $1,339.57, or in total figures $411.87 more than Beloit paid. It is always a good thing to look up figures before making such rash statements.

Nightingales Under a Ban.
It is said that no nightingales sing in Haverling, England. Legend has it that the singing of the birds disturbed the devotions of Edward the Confessor when at his Haverling palace, and he therefore placed them under a ban from which they have never recovered.

APOLLO CLUB HAS POSTPONED MEETING

On account of Concert By Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra Monday Evening.

On account of the concert by the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra at the Myers Theatre on Monday evening, the regular meeting of the Apollo club which was scheduled for the same night has been postponed. The probable date upon which it will be held is March 13 or 14. The attraction which have been secured by the club for meeting this month are to the usual high standard of artists that they bring here. Miss Della Threl, pianist, and Alexander Zaychowsky, violinist, with the Thomas orchestra will furnish a program of high class selections.

To Cut Plate Glass.
To cut a piece of plate glass it is thought a diamond cutter is necessary, but it is not. If the glass is not very thick it can be cut with a pair of scissors, a large pair being preferable. While cutting hold the glass beneath half a foot or more of water, and it can be cut any shape desired. A round piece of glass has been cut out of a good sized pane in just this manner. The scissors do not have to be extra sharp.—Success.

Feb. 7:3, 4, 24-28, Luk 20:31-35. Sabbath School Lesson for the week of Feb. 7-13. Text: "I am the bread of life. He that cometh unto me shall never hunger, and he that cometh unto me shall never thirst." (John 6:35). "I am the light of the world. He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." (John 8:12). "I am the true vine. He that abideth in me, and I in him, shall bring forth much fruit to the glory of the Father." (John 15:1-5). "I am the resurrection and the life. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." (John 11:25-26). "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man cometh unto the Father, but by me." (John 14:6). "I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd giveth his life for the sheep." (John 10:11). "I am the door. Whosoever will, he may come in, and shall have life, and shall satisfy his desire." (John 10:9). "I am the true vine. He that abideth in me, and I in him, shall bring forth much fruit to the glory of the Father." (John 15:1-5). "I am the resurrection and the life. EUROPE COVERED BY WAR CLOUDS

Italian Troops Rush to Meet
Austrian Force.

TRIPLE ALLIANCE STRAINED

Blight of King Emanuel by Emperor
William and Francis Joseph Resented in Italy—Spain and Vatican Clash.

London, March 3.—Austria and Italy are hurrying troops and guns to the frontier that separate them. The military movement is being executed quietly, but both governments are animated by a spirit which bodes trouble. The irredentist agitation in Italy to regain possession of Trieste, on the coast, and Trent, in the Tyrol, from Austria, has assumed sudden force and activity.

The question is asked again whether the triple alliance can stand the strain to which it is being subjected. Indeed, international conditions in Europe seem full of grave portents at the moment.

Recent Austro-German Stand.

Italian feeling resents the decisions of both Emperor William and Emperor Francis Joseph not to visit their ally, King Victor Emmanuel, during the celebration of the jubilee of Italy's unification. That the two monarchs will absent themselves is regarded as only another sign of the indifference to Italian sentiment which Austria and Germany have displayed recently.

The crown prince of Germany will represent his father in Rome, while the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, the Austrian heir-apparent, refuses to go further than Turin toward Rome.

This difference paid by Austria to the "prisoner of the Vatican" offends Italy. Headed by Mayor Nathan, the Roman municipality has retorted by naming a street after Herdunk, the irredentist fanatic who tried to assassinate Emperor Francis Joseph in 1882, a move that certainly will not pour balm upon existing wounds.

Spain and Vatican at Odds.

The trouble between Spain and the Vatican has broken out afresh. Apparently there is no hope of arranging the serious misunderstanding between them. Cardinal Merry del Val, the papal secretary of state, declares that the Vatican cannot recognize Spain's new legislation against the religious orders unless it is submitted to the Vatican. Sig. Canalejas, Spain's premier, peremptorily rejects this suggestion.

France in the Throes of a Ministerial Crisis.

France is in the throes of a ministerial crisis resulting in the formation of a new cabinet whose members must be pledged to a Socialist policy and the renewal of a general war against the religious congregations.

France Also in Turmoil.

Ireland, whose government has just been overthrown, realized that it was bad policy to proceed further against the congregations and eased pressure on them, but the ministers who succeed him will be pledged to war to the knife against them.

A ministerial crisis is impending in Constantinople, which may mean a coup d'etat there. The Young Turk leaders have fallen out with England and Germany in turn and have lost most of their supporters' confidence.

Russia and France seem to be drifting apart, while the French official press daily scores England as a world ally because the present British cabinet is seeking better relations with Germany.

In a word, there is widespread unrest among the nations of Europe, and in it are at least the elements of serious complications.

500 REFUGEES ARE BURNED

Chinese Villagers Destroy Wandering
Band of Hungry Plunderers
Who Rob and Kill.

Victoria, B. C., March 3.—Rendered desperate by hunger, bands of hundreds of starving refugees are roving through the famine stricken area of China, plundering and killing, and a reign of terror prevails, according to persons who arrived here on the Tambo Maru, which reached port from the Orient.

At Kunshan, a walled village within 50 miles of Shanghai, the villagers, after a desperate raid in which stores were looted and many killed, meted out punishment peculiarly Chinese in its callousness to the raiding refugees. A band of more than 500 are reported to have been surrounded in a compound and burned to death.

SIX HURT IN WABASH WRECK

Truck Under Engine Tender Broke Down and Cars Are Thrown Down Embankment.

Fort Wayne, Ind., March 3.—Six persons were somewhat severely injured by a wreck on the Wabash two miles east of Woodburn, Ind. Passenger No. 12, east-bound, was running in two sections, the first section carrying two mail cars and a sleeper. It is thought a truck beneath the engine tender broke and the cars toppled over an embankment.

Matthews (Ind.) Bank Robbed.

Marion, Ind., March 3.—The Farmers State bank of Matthews was entered by robbers, the safe blown and a sum of money estimated between $3,000 and $5,000 taken.

Wonderful!

"Oh, mamma," exclaimed little Beale, "I started to make my doll a bonnet and it came out an apron."

The Resurrection of Christ

By REV. W. L. MUNIALL of Philadelphia

TEXT.—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.—1 Peter 1, 3, 4 and 5.

It was by the sin of one man that death entered the world. The fountain in Eden was poisoned and the waters have flowed on through the ages in their polluted state. God in His infinite mercy has provided a remedy, a way of escape, by His Son, who descended into the grave, battled with death and was risen again. The text which I am taking is really too big for a day or an hour, for on it one versed in the word of God would talk a week.

The heart of this text is taken from the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. Paul in 16-19 said: "For thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." This was a prophecy by David in reference to Jesus.

Peter said: "Men and brethren, let me speak of David's prophecy, he being dead. But according to prophecy, his soul shall reign and his flesh shall not see death."

David prophesied and Peter spoke of the accomplishment of the prophecy, that he, David's soul, should not see death.

Paul said: "He rose again on the third day." This was according to the scriptures; the old scriptures, for there was no New Testament in those days. All authorities uniformly agree that no fact is so well established as that Christ rose from the dead.

Here we have over 500 creditable witnesses that testify according to the resurrection of Jesus. There can be no doubt of it, yet there are people who doubt. I suppose all of you say you do believe—but do you?

Let me explain. Do you believe that God's people will be raised in body from the dead? You can not possibly believe in the bodily resurrection of your Lord from the grave without believing in the bodily resurrection for God's people. I throw this out by way of emphasis.

Those who deny literal resurrection from premises of their own consequently reach unnatural conclusions. There is no teaching of the resurrection apart from the teaching in the sacred scriptures.

I may take for illustration of the resurrection the hideous worm that spins its own winding sheet and lies in a cocoon. By and by it bursts and a beautiful moth emerges. This illustrates but does not explain the doctrine of bodily resurrection from the dead. The only place to find explanation of resurrection of the dead is in the scriptures.

Some say man and horse are the same; that they live and die all the same. This doctrine is not what men say and believe. It is purely and only a revelation from God. What says the scriptures? If you have nothing here that gives you hope, you have nothing. Psalm 16: "Therefore my heart is glad and my glory rejoices. My flesh also shall rest in hope. Thou wilt not leave my soul in hell." David knew there was resurrection. David trusted in God and could say, looking death in its hideousness in the fact: "Oh death, where is thy sting—grave, where is thy victory?" We have been made one with Him and have a living hope through Him.

At the death the spirit returns to the God of David, and the soul departs to its place of felicity until the second coming of Christ, when we enter into our own. Of the wicked—they have a soul, but no spiritual life. At their death the soul departs to torment. The body of all goes into the grave and resolves back to the dust of the earth. "The dust of the earth shall rise" (the bodies).

That which is in the grave comes forth—there is nothing but the body in the grave, therefore it is the body which is raised. Allow to a certain extent the premises the we are as animals; that Jesus was born of woman, like us; that Christ was developed into manhood by the laws of nature. At 33 years He was nailed upon the tree; His body was taken down by kind hands.

On the third day an angel rolled back the stone. The same physical body came out of that tomb. Women know Him (we will also know Him), and He said: "Go tell My disciples that I ascend."

He ascended, directly returned and allowed women to touch Him, when before when He had met them He had said, "No, I have not ascended." This was in accordance with an old Moslem dispensation which did not allow women to touch a priest who was engaged in the ceremony of sin offering. Christ, is a priest, and was a sin offering, and could not be touched until He appeared before the Father and completed the offering. He then returned to earth and allowed the women to touch Him. He also let doubting Thomas touch Him. He appeared in their midst and told Thomas to reach forth his fingers, saying probably: "This, Thomas, is the same hand I used in ministering to the needy and suffering and sorrowing. This was the same body born of woman, crucified, buried and risen from the dead."

For forty days He was with the disciples, walked, talked and even ate with them, and was seen no less than eleven times.

2,000,000 CHINESE FACE STARVATION

Deaths From Famine Far Exceed Those From Plague.

APPEAL FOR AID IS URGENT

Lack of Knowledge of Sanitation Prevents Check of Disease by Natives—Worst Since Middle Ages.

Peking, China, March 3.—Famine and the plague are sweeping over China. According to the official statistics, the death rate averages 200 daily, but the officials have little knowledge of the conditions in the interior, or, if they have, they are not permitting the facts to be known. It is impossible even to estimate the number of deaths that have resulted from lack of food. Dr. Samuel Cochran, an American, who is engaged in the work of relief, writes:

"One million people will die before the first crop is harvested. This will be scanty, because the people have not the strength to till the soil and no animals remain for plowing."

Two Million Living on Roots
It is estimated that 2,000,000 people are without food and are existing on roots, grasses, or anything that affords the slightest possibility of nourishment. Those possessing grain guard it night and day.

Since the recent Russian request for permission to cross the border and quarantine Chinese towns along the Amur, China has been attempting to check the plague along that frontier, but the Russian legation says that this has been done ineffectively, because there are no doctors there who are familiar with modern methods of sanitation and both supplies and funds are lacking.

Worst Since the Middle Ages.

A relief committee composed of foreigners at Shanghai is collecting money. So far Japan and America are the only foreign countries that have contributed aid to the sufferers, but even the extensive assistance that has come from the United States is entirely inadequate.

Physicians are of the opinion that warm weather will kill the plague germs, although this may bring only a temporary respite.

Medical authorities say such an epidemic as the present one, which is entirely pneumonic, has not visited the world since the middle ages.

Winner of Nobel Prize Dead.

Berlin, Germany, March 3.—Prof. Jakob Heinrich Vannt Hoff, the chemist and author, is dead here. He was professor of chemistry at Berlin university and in 1901 received the Nobel prize of $10,000 for research in chemistry.

Puts Negro in Federal Office.

Washington, March 3.—James C. Napier of Tennessee was named by President Taft to be register of the treasury. Napier is a negro.

Champion Johnson Is Fined.

San Francisco, March 3.—John R. Johnson, world's champion heavy-weight pugilist, was fined $100 by Acting Police Judge Conlan for driving his automobile at an unlawful speed. Johnson at once served notice that he would appeal the case to a higher court.

New Holland Tramway System.

The Dutch government has granted a concession to the Amsterdam & North Holland Tramway Company to build and operate an electric railway system in Holland. The route will be nearly 50 miles, running from Amsterdam north through Zanddam to Krommendijk, from Zanddam to Wykman-Zee, and Wurmervoorde to Purmerend. The Holland Development Company of Amsterdam will build the entire system.

An English Point of View.

A recent London police court case brought to general notice a new phase of the outdoor advertising evil. A constable found a man painting ads. on a pavement, and charged him with "willfully depositing paint upon the footway."

Heart to Heart Talks.

OUR HILDA.

Note this news item:
"Mrs. O. H. Howard (St. Louis, wife of the president of the Commonwealth Steel company, gave the use of her mansion and personally acted as general director at the wedding of her maid, Martha Sultsmeyer, and her gardener, Daniel Figart."

Well, why not?
Doubtless Martha was a good maid of long service and Daniel a worthy and efficient gardener and they loved each other.

Why not give them as good a wedding as the establishment could boast? Of course it was right and proper, and Mrs. Howard is an eminently sensible woman and good at heart and is never bothered by the so-called "servant problem." Of course it was right and—Very unusual.

That is why the St. Louis newspapers featured the wedding and no doubt exaggerated the flowers, music, etc.

Should I tell you of Hilda?

Hilda came to our house, where she learned the language and the ways of things, almost direct from Sweden. And a flower girl was she.

She was dependable.

If we went away from the home, it mattered not how long, Hilda stayed by the stove. She cared for our things as if they had been her own.

She was not much of a talker, but smiled a great deal, and that smile straightened out many a kink in our household. The children took their troubles to her as naturally as to their mother.

Hilda was one of the family.

And when later on her lover came to court her she had the pick of all the rooms to entertain him in, only she would choose to take him to her clean, sweet little kitchen.

Hilda was worth courting.

And when she got married do you suppose anything in our house was too good for Hilda? Though in her modest cottage her lover had builded.

And we all cried—and none of us was ashamed of it—when Hilda got married.

"Servant problem?"

There was nothing to it. We just loved Hilda and she loved us.

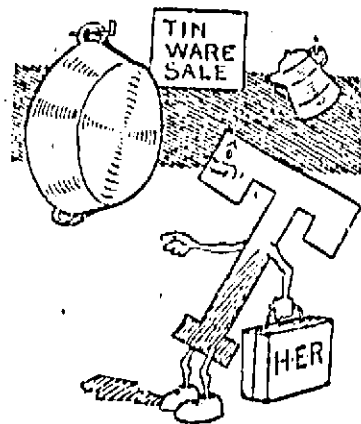

And our hearts are still sore over Hilda's going.

Eternal Advertising.

The indispensable necessity of persistently advertising even the best known and best proved commodities may be a poor indication of the constancy and alertness to its own interests of the general public, but it has often been attested and proved true by business men of long standing success and experience. One such assured "tip" that three years' steady advertising was necessary to produce a successful result, while even after a commodity had an established place in the market "to be a short time out of the advertising was dangerous."

Punishment

When Perkson, let himself into the house that evening after having remained slightly longer than usual at the office he sniffed the air and detected a number of things. First there was anger. Then there was fear and grief, blended. In addition there was sympathy.

Perkson may perhaps have suspected the presence of anger from the manner of Mrs. Perkson's greeting, and the stern expression of her face. The fear and grief may have been deduced from the manner of little nine-year-old Carrie, who crept to his side and fondled one of his hands in a half-frightened and fearful manner until he swung her up and kissed her. The sympathy may have been shown in the actions and expression of five-year-old Josie, who kept close to her older sister's side and gave her a loving squeeze at every opportunity. Altogether it seemed a very sad and distressing household.

Perkson tried to chase the baby behind a chair, but it would not chase. It just stood and looked at him. He buried his chin beneath Josie's ear and mumbled in her neck in the loving fashion peculiar to parents, and which never before had failed to throw her into spasms of laughter, but she took the muzzling in bored silence. He grasped Carrie and turning her upside down, made her kick the curtain pole above the double door. It produced never a struggle or a giggle from Carrie. He fired a bunch of jokes at Mrs. Perkson and she merely looked at him.

Perkson, discouraged, retired to his den. When the dinner bell rang he came out and took his place at the table, wearing his sealskin cap, his earmuffs, his overcoat, his galoshes, his mittens and his neckscarf.

"Have you got a chill?" asked Mrs. Perkson.

"That's what I've got," replied Perkson. "I never know it to be so frosty before at this time of year." Then Perkson, having made his point, piled his winter clothing on a chair and resented himself at the table.

"Joseph, you have got to give Carrie a good whipping," said Mrs. Perkson. "I have told her that you would, and you must."

Perkson jumped up from the table and went to the basement, returning presently with a club five feet long and about three inches in diameter. "Now," said he, "tell me what it is about."

"She is so careless that she doesn't pay the least attention to what she is about. I gave her 50 cents today and told her to go to the market and get a steak for dinner, and what do you suppose she did?"

"How many guesses may I have?"

"Now, don't be silly; this is a serious matter."

"Well, then, I seriously guess that she squandered a nickel, a half dime, the twentieth part of a dollar, for candy."

"No, she didn't. She laid the half-dollar down on the sidewalk while she buttoned the strap to her slipper, and then she went along to the market, and when she went back to look for it it was gone! I never heard of such carelessness."

"That was awful!"

"Are you going to whip her?"

"I am going to break her to pieces!"

"Grrr!"

"Now, don't try to be funny. Children must be taught to keep their wits about them. Such carelessness is inexcusable."

"I know it. I have got to deal out several whippings tonight, though—sort of clean up the slate, you know."

"What are you talking about?"

"Well, I remember that a few weeks ago a grown-up girl went into a department store, and after looking at some goods, went out leaving a five-dollar hand-bag containing $10 in money lying on the counter. Because of the clerk's honesty, the purse and its contents were recovered, and the woman has never had a whipping for that."

"Well, that—"

"Another time, not so very long ago, a grown-up girl called at a friend's house and—how similar this is to the tale of the half-dollar—her shoes coming untied just as she was starting for home, she put her purse on the steps while she tied her shoe. Then she went home, leaving her purse behind. Later on she accused her loving husband of having hidden her purse for a joke. That grown-up girl has never been whipped for that."

"The Perksons are trying with their food for a few moments in silence."

"Well," said Perkson, jumping to his feet. "I'll have to get it over with."

"Whip me first, Joseph," said Mrs. Perkson, with tears in her eyes as she came out and put her arms about his neck. "I feel that I have been very hard-hearted and thoughtless—and—cruel. I ought to be whipped."

"No one ought to be whipped," replied Perkson. "I would not bruise one of my babies for all the half-dollars that were ever minted, and you know I wouldn't or you wouldn't have told me to."

"I—I guess you know me better than I know myself," said Mrs. Perkson, with a little catch in her throat.

A college education is the beginning of many a brilliant success—and failure.

Too Much.

With Italy's comet billed to come along sometime in June, and Roosevelt due that month also, we fear we're a gone case.

Positively Brutal.
"They do say," remarked Smithkins, as he pushed his chair from the dinner table, "that a woman's work is never done!"

"And they are right when they say it," rejoined Mrs. Smithkins. "But what made you think of it at this time?"

"That pie," replied Smithkins, as he dodged through the door just in time to escape a plate that was coming his way.

The Power of Suggestion.
"I know what I am going to do," said the exasperated head of the family as he listened for the twentieth time to the only tune his daughter knew how to play on the piano, "I am going to join this fresh air crusade."

Short Fall.
Browning—Are you interested in the Goldbrick Mining company?
Greening—Yes, indeed. I got in on the ground floor.
Browning—You're lucky. You won't have so far to fall.
Greening—What do you mean?
Browning—The bottom dropped out this morning.

Had Reached the Limit.
"Father says you can't come to see Edna any more," remarked the small boy to his big sister's admirer.
"Why not?" stammered the young man in surprise.
"Because," explained the youngster, "he says you come every night in the week now, and it would be impossible to come any more. See?"

Easily Jolted Off.
"There seems to be quite a disturbance down at the Forks."
"Yes; old man Peasley has just fallen off his water wagon."
"Is that so? He didn't stay on board very long?"
"What could that dumb fool expect? He couldn't hold on with a gallon jug of ketchup in his arms!"

More Appropriate.
"So the minister has a pet parrot. I should think it would be more according to the fitness of things for him to have a vulture."
"A vulture! Great Scott! Why should he have such a bird for a pet?"
"Well, one would suppose a minister would want a bird of prey."

Poor Timpers.
"I have just made a valuable discovery," announced Timpers.
"What is it?" asked Twigg.
"I'm a fool."
"Ah, the joke is on your friends."
"How is that?"
"You know something they don't think you know."

Frigid.
Stubb—I was much interested in Dr. Cook's account of his supper at the north pole.
Penn—Oh, that doesn't interest me. My wife attended her club yesterday afternoon and I had a north pole supper.
Stubb—North pole supper? How was it?
Penn—Cold.

New York—"I'd rather have a husband than a title any way. You see we English people are not so anxious for titles as you Americans." This is the way Mrs. Joseph Hutt, who was Baroness de Rottenburg, rebuked a reporter who addressed her by her title as she and her newly wedded husband, whom she has known just a month, left the Abington Square hotel today on their way to Ohio.

"I'm leaving town without seeing anything of the people or the sights of this famous New York, and all because the reporters haven't given us a moment's peace since we got our license at the city hall yesterday," the bride complained, her cheeks becoming ruby colored from her embarrassment. "I wanted so much to see more of this great city, but it is too—too hot."

As the interviewer looked out at the snow covered street the bridegroom hastened to explain.

"She means the reporters have made it hot for us."

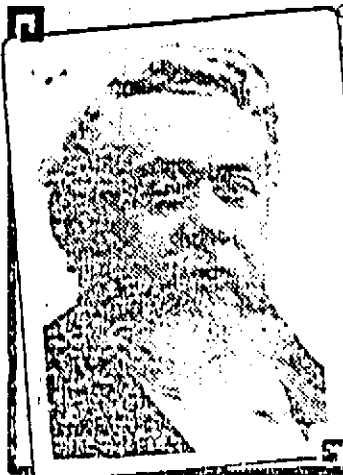

"But you Americans are clever and rapid," added the bride by way of atoning.

"Isn't your husband an American?" she was asked.

"No, indeed," she answered proudly. "He is an Englishman. You don't think I would marry an American do you?" "Some people have tried it," was suggested.

"Then why do the American girls all seek foreign husbands?" Mrs. Hutt demanded. "I really think it is because they are so fond of titles," she answered her own question. "I don't see why you have not a king and queen over here—you all seem to be quite used to royalty."

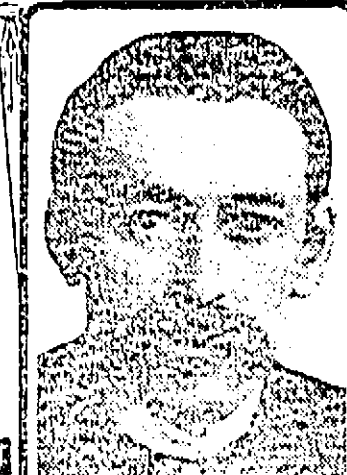

Mrs. Hutt said she expects to like Ohio farm life and is glad to exchange an empty title for plain "Mrs." and a husband. And then the happy pair started on their honeymoon.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

"YES, my dear, after all I did for her in introducing her to those people and trying to do everything in my power to make her vacation pleasant, she never has shown me the slightest gratitude. Isn't that trying? I declare, it has taught me a lesson."

So said the lady on the seat in front of me in the car. Now, please don't accuse me of eavesdropping for I assure you that her tones were so forcibly audible that I should have had to put my hands over my ears or get under the seat to avoid hearing her.

Just then I reached my destination and got off the car, so I wasn't given to hear what the lesson was—if, indeed, the lady elucidated that matter.

I rather suspect she left it to the intelligence of her hearer to grasp that the lesson was that it didn't pay to do things for people because they were so apt to be ungrateful.

I wonder if there is any weakness of human nature more common and more unconscious than this greedy demand for gratitude for services done on the part of people who at the same time demand credit from the world for their generosity in performing said services.

Isn't it queer that more of us aren't logical enough to see that the moment we demand an equivalent in gratitude that moment we invalidate our bill for unselfishness?

To do good deeds because one wishes to bask in the gratitude they call forth is no more meritorious than to do kindnesses because one expects favors in return.

The only merit is to do kind things because one knows they should be done, and because one wants to help the world along.

I know a woman who seldom misses a chance to help people but who, to my mind, loses all title to generosity by always being ready to say sharp things about her benefactors, unless whenever they meet her they metaphorically fall on their knees and assure her, "Oh, Mrs. L., I don't know what I should have done if it hadn't been for you. I don't know how I can ever thank you," or something equally fulsome.

As for myself I haven't any use for her kind of generosity.

Ideal generosity invariably shrinks from thanks and accepts them only because it knows that thanks may be the natural outlet for the recipient's state of mind and that it is cruel to deny him the opportunity to express them.

Everywhere there are people on boards and committees who do much work without pay and who take great credit to themselves for this generosity, but who all the time are exacting a continual toll of gratitude and praise, and who if this is not promptly paid get in a huff and resign or at least relax their efforts.

What funny self-deceiving folks this planet is peopled with, isn't it? Present company always excepted, of course.

CAPTAIN SMITH TO PETITION CONGRESS FOR TRIAL.
Mrs. George L. Barnett, who made charges against Captain Guy H. B. Smith, which resulted in his dismissal from army.

Washington, D. C.—The mystery surrounding the case of Capt. Guy H. B. Smith, cashiered from his command of a company of the Fourth Infantry at Fort Crook, deepens rather than clears as details are brought out. Captain Smith is to petition congress for trial. The case is the most discussed question in army circles.

The trouble which resulted in Captain Smith's dismissal occurred while a number of army officers and their wives were voyaging from the Philippines to America. Three days out from San Francisco Captain Smith was placed under arrest.

According to information credited to Senator Burton, Mrs. Barnett the evening before Captain Smith's arrest called the officers together and informed them that had her husband or any army officer been present at the time, Captain Smith would have been shot.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Cleveland friends of Captain Smith and his brother, George Seadey Smith, 2028 Cornell road, maintain that Captain Smith was innocent and that his conviction was the result of army politics. "I know that my brother was innocent," said Dr. Smith. "He was convicted on the testimony of a 17-year-old girl, which testimony would not be accepted in a civil court."

He refused further to discuss the case. The secret court-martial was entirely without precedent. The news that charges had been preferred against Captain Smith was startling, but when it was announced that the captain was to be tried before a secret tribunal none of the members of which was to be an officer below the rank of major, it became the talk of all the army and navy clubs. When the trial was held a guard of soldiers was posted around the building with fixed bayonets, and none except the officers of the court or witnesses were allowed to enter. Mrs. Barnett is a well-known social figure, both in Washington and Philadelphia. She comes of a prominent Baltimore family. Her mother is Mrs. Powhatan Montague of Baltimore.

Her first husband was Basil Gordon, rich Baltimore business man. In Baltimore Mrs. Barnett's house parties at her country place, Wakefield Manor, were famous. When she married Barnett, five years ago, they went to Peking, where he had command of the forces at the American legation.

At Fort Leavenworth, where Smith once was stationed, his closest friends deny any knowledge of his plans. It was rumored there that he would go to that post for a short stay before entering upon any vacation in private life. Leavenworth officers, who were known to be in deepest sympathy with him at the time of his court martial, refused to affirm or deny the rumor.

Captain Smith was appointed to West Point in 1887 from Maryland. He ranked down from December, 1900. When stationed at Leavenworth he attended the Infantry and Cavalry school, graduating with highest honors in 1907. His rank as a student continued high, and throughout his entire term of service he applied himself conscientiously in an endeavor to acquire promotion. He was ranked among the first 70 army captains at the time of his trial.

Topography was his specialty and he gave all his leisure time to a study of that subject. The Philippine campaign served to show his proficiency in his chosen department of army tactics, and he was referred to as possessing a wonderful knack for choosing advantageous positions for the deployment of troops.

General Smith, who was president of the county building commission at the time of his death, was retired as a brigadier general, after having served throughout the Civil war and Indian campaigns. The son often had stated his ambition as being anxious to equal his father's record.

He made his associates among a class of persons who could in no way contribute to his success.

Look for the successful man and then look for the type of men he has gathered around him and you will understand why he was successful.

A prominent actor once told an interviewer that he made it a rule of his life to associate only with persons who could add to his mental equipment, and who would benefit by whatever he was able to give out in the same line. Another rule was that he determined to always dress as well as his pocketbook would let him, and to live at as good hotels as he could afford.

The first part of his rule resulted

In his coming in contact with such men and women of intellectual force. The second gave him that appearance of prosperity so necessary to make success in any line of work.

Friends that do not contribute something to your moral uplift, your intellectual capacity and your general standing are not of much value to you at any stage of the game. They may be very detrimental, and be a matter of serious loss to you in the long run. All of us color our lives by our contact with those around us just as the chemist takes his lines from whatever object it happens to rest upon.

We must also give it no take; but if we are to mount to better things we must absorb the best that there is around us, and we must always endeavor to have that best the very best.

The world takes many peculiar angles, but never more so than in its conceptions of what constitutes success. Therefore, appearance of prosperity is taken as an evidence of success, and the man or woman who successfully maintains that appearance is reasonably sure of having his or her plans work out right. That is, if back of the appearance of prosperity there is a definite object in life and an honest intent to work for what one gets.

The useless and the shirking person never arrives anywhere. He stays stationary and sooner or later begins to disintegrate. He fills no need in life, and what does not fill a need has no place in the economy of society.

It is from our friends that most of us drink our inspiration and get our incentives. If we form the habit in our younger days of association only with those who perhaps a little more advanced intellectually than ourselves, life holds many possibilities for us, for we never get away from the influence of a cultured and intellectual environment.

LOSES FORTUNE IN STOLEN GEMS.

Mrs. Madeline Drummond, formerly Mrs. Marshall Field, Jr., of Chicago, and recent photograph showing her pearls and other jewels. Sometime during her voyage across the Atlantic on the Hamburg-American steamer America, which landed in New York February 25, the major portion of Mrs. Drummond's gems, valued at $120,000, was stolen. A drag net has been set by private detectives and the New York police for the robbers. The theft is one of the largest ever made from a collection of private gems.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

AN EXTREME INSTANCE.

The editor of the Mt. Pleasant, Mich., Times reports a case, which I have been unable to verify, of a man living on unroasted Virginia peanuts, exclusively, for two years, after being declared a hopeless consumptive. The objection that naturally occurs is that the peanut contains about 28 per cent of albumen, more than beef, and about 50 per cent of free fat, and that the consumption of so large a percentage of albumen must injure the kidneys, while so large a percentage of fat must soon derange the liver. But the proportion of albumen to carbohydrate in the peanut is less than one to five, since fat has two and a half times the value of starch or sugar; and since peanut fat, uncooked, is very easily assimilated, the only serious objection to such a diet for an invalid is that it is extremely concentrated, being richer than any other food, as the special bulletin issued by the department of agriculture on the cultivation of the peanut shows.

Tribute to Womanhood.

Womanhood is the most sacred thing in life. When God made worlds, and spun from His fingers like jewels on a string planets and systems of planets, and then had called the various forms of His living creatures into being, even after He had made man, the last and greatest creative act was the helpmeet for the man.—Exchange.

It pays to read the sun.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Many a time the appearance of healthiness is due to nothing else but a lack of vitality.

Choice Dainties.

These dishes are too expensive, some of them, to prepare for every day, but when entertaining our friends we like to have something a little out of the ordinary and at the same time well-liked.

Deviled Bones.—Melt two table-spoonfuls of butter and add a table-spoonful of chili sauce, one of walnut catsup and one of Worcestershire sauce, a teaspoon of made mustard and a few grains of cayenne. Cut four small gashes in the legs, wings and second joints of a cooked chicken. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and dredge with flour. Cook in the butter and sauces until well browned. Pour on a half cup of hot stock, simmer five minutes, sprinkle with chopped parsley and serve.

Deviled Almonds.—Blanch two ounces of almonds, fry in butter, using enough to keep the almonds from burning. Mix a table-spoon each of chutney, Worcestershire and two table-spoonfuls of chopped pickles, season with salt and pepper and pour over nuts. Serve with oysters.

Fig Cakes.—Stuff half a pound of the pulled figs with chopped salted almonds. Put two table-spoonfuls of sugar, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and half a cup of orange juice in a chafing dish. When the mixture is hot, add the figs, turning and basting often. Cook until tender and serve with lady fingers.

Peach Canapes.—Fry circular pieces of sponge cake in butter until delicately browned. Drain canned peaches, sprinkle with powdered sugar, a few drops of lemon juice and a grating of nutmeg. Melt a table-spoonful of butter, add the peaches and when heated serve on the cake.

Cheese Sandwiches.—Grate cheese and mix with cream, a dash of red pepper and salt. Spread on circular pieces of bread that have been buttered; place in pans and saute in a little butter until brown. Turn on both sides until well browned and serve hot.

Almonds if cooked, after blanching, in a little butter until brown, then sprinkled with salt and red pepper, make a pleasing way of serving them.

Daily Science Talk

President Department of Astronomy,

THE HATAVIA SMASH.

THE New York Central rear end collision, in which at an early hour on a recent foggy morning train 23 overtook train 46, affords food for scientific reflection.

"I was standing in the coach just ahead of the wrecked Pullman," said a passenger, "when the car seemed to be driven right out from under me."

The impression was correct. His train was just starting from the station when struck in the rear by the train following. The fearful blow suddenly "hoisted" the first train ahead, and everything that was fast, like the seats screwed to the floor, went with it. Everything that was loose, like this passenger standing in the aisle, owing to the law of inertia, was left behind. The car jumping ahead would leave him falling back to the rear—literally falling—for there was enough friction between his feet and the floor to carry his feet with the car, while his head toppled backward. Thus he undoubtedly lost balance and unless clutching some support he fell.

The crash was but momentary. In one or two seconds all was done. The rear Pullman had been split and unroofed, the colliding engine had been reduced to scrap iron, and the sleeping passengers had been cut right and left or buried under the wreckage. By the time bystanders got their wits an exact state of things had been produced which if all the conditions could have been foreseen could have been foretold and even pictured with the accuracy of photography.

Given certain conditions, certain results must follow, and no others are in the slightest degree possible. Given certain conditions as to the speed of the two trains, their weight, the alleged slippery state of the rails, the structure of the cars, the materials of which they were made, the exact instant of application of brakes, the positions of the sleeping passengers and a thousand other things, and precisely those results were bound to follow which were discovered right after the collision.

The application of the emergency brakes a single second sooner or later would very greatly have altered the results. A train running sixty miles an hour covers eighty-eight feet every second. Train 23 is said to have been running twenty miles an hour when it overtook train 46. Even that means twenty-nine feet a second. A second's difference in the absence of an engineer may make a difference of half a dozen lives and thousands of dollars' worth of property.

Dangerous.

People frequently get kicked over backward while endeavoring to shoot folly as it flies.

Jelly Roll Recipe

Only Two Eggs Required

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of
The Boston Cooking School Magazine

This Jelly Roll is fast becoming very popular on account of the way it keeps fresh. With proper handling it should keep fresh a whole week, providing it isn't eaten up in the meantime, for it is every bit as good as it looks.

In Two Minutes

Easy and Quickest Way to Break
Up a Cold

Up a Cold

If you want instant relief from cold in head or chest, or from acute catarrh, try this:

Put a bowl of boiling hot water over the bowl and cover head and bowl with towel. Then breathe the steam, penetrating, antiseptic vapor deep into the lungs, over the sore, raw, tender membrane, and most gratifying relief will come in a few minutes.

Drugs are everywhere will sell a bottle of IYOMEL for 50 cents. Ask for extra bottle IYOMEL Inhalant.

Don't be ambitious. Don't be prejudiced. There is not a particle of morphine, cocaine, or any injurious or habit forming drug in IYOMEL.

Give it a trial at the People's Drug Co.'s risk, they guarantee it. It is made of eucalyptus and other grand antiseptics. It will chase away the misery of catarrh or any affliction of the nose and throat in a few minutes.

You can get a trial sample free by writing Booths Hyamol Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

COUNTESS APPEARED IN CLASSIC DANCES

Talented Russian Gave Audience at Myers Theatre Rare Treat
Last Evening.

There is no one so well qualified to appreciate the beautiful, in artistic and dramatic entertainments, but it is any consolation to those who remained away from the Myers theatre last evening and failed to witness the entertainment of Countess de Swirsky to know that they missed one of the most beautiful and artistic performances that has ever been given in Jansville.

Countess de Swirsky is an exponent of the beautiful in dancing. She is, herself, a talented musician and had accompanying her an orchestra of eight pieces that gave a concert of a quality seldom heard outside of the large cities. Perhaps her most skillful interpretation was that of "La Mort d'Ange," her second dance in the third part, although the "Mazurka Russe," one of her opening numbers, gave her a rare opportunity to portray her grace. Her costumes, appropriate to the scenes she depicted, permitted her full scope to give all the graceful movements of her wonderful dances. Some were abbreviated, but all were most gorgeous and appropriate.

The entire entertainment was devoid of anything vulgar or coarse, was artistic in the extreme, and the dances the Countess gave were the personification of all that is beautiful. She was added by her dancing to the beautiful music which was played during the time the curtain was lowered between the dances, gave concerts of classical music that delighted the music-lovers of the audience.

It was an entertainment of a nature that had never been witnessed in Jansville before and it is to be regretted that more did not witness it. Those who were present, however, were delighted, and the applause of the beautiful dancer in the classic dances of Tanagra when she displayed her skill as a finished musician on a piano, as well as a dancer, were most profuse.

Cribbage Tournament Held at the Hotel London Last Evening
Proved Most Enjoyable.

There was a huge wild roast goose and "trimmings" devoured at the Hotel London last evening as the result of a cribbage tournament which was held there. Unfortunately for the comfort of four of the players they had to settle, having carried off the loser's and of the evening's entertainment. The tournament, composed of William Wilson and J. B. Horn, defeated the Rosen's, composed of Dr. Thurston, Vernon Murdock, William Stoddard and Edward Baumann, permitting the losing side to win only one game out of all played. Mr. Lawyer had provided a fat wild goose as the place de resistance and with the trimmings it proved a most enjoyable feast. Other games will be played later.

RIOT AT BERNSTEIN'S PLAY

Paris Police Charge Mob With Sabers
—Many Persons Are Injured—
Duel Fought.

Paris, March 3.—Henri Bernstein's new play, "Après Moi," was put on again at the Comedie Francaise, after a brief suspension due to the illness of one of the chief performers. The usual disturbances occurred. Magnanimity was dropped from the gallery and exploded, causing several women to faint.

Outside the theatre there were scenes of exceptional violence. The mounted force charged the crowds repeatedly with drawn sabers, and several persons were injured on both sides.

Following bitter newspaper controversies, Marcel Nadan, a substitute for Bernstein, fought a duel with Leon Daudet. Swords were used and Nadan was wounded in the arm.

MONROE PIONEER HAS PASSED AWAY

Stephen Miller, Aged 72, and A Resident of Monroe For Nearly Sixty Years Is Dead.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Monroe, March 2.—Stephen Miller, a pioneer resident of this city, and who for thirty years conducted a meat market on the east side of the square, succumbed to an ailment of long standing, following an operation, in the Lofthorow hospital, whether he was taken a week ago. He is the third son in a family of nine children, to die within six months, two brothers, Albert, of this city, and Ed. Miller, of Milwaukee, dying within a week several months ago.

Mr. Miller was born in Germany in 1839, coming here with his parents fourteen years later. His father was a cabinet maker, which trade the son learned, and he plied his trade in Jefferson for a short time coming here in 1861 at which time he opened up a meat market. He was succeeded by his son, Chas. P. Miller, in the business five years, feeling that he might enjoy the remaining years of his life in comfort. He leaves beside his wife three children, Mrs. James Hodges, of Winnetka, S. D., Chas. B. Miller, of this city and H. B. Miller, of Minneapolis. He also leaves three sisters, Mrs. Caroline Schuetz and Mrs. Anna Krehmer, of this city, Mrs. Louise Brandt, of Oshkosh, and three brothers, Robert Miller, of this city, Benjamin Miller, of Freeport, and Antonio Miller of Los Angeles, Cal.

Miss Iva Berkey, a patient sufferer from tuberculosis for nearly four years, answered the death summons at the home of her parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Berkey, being unconscious during the last hours of her life. She was 32 years of age and was born in Monticello, Green county, Wis., on July 25, 1878. Previous to being taken ill, she was a successful milliner. Her parents, five sisters survive: Mrs. Ada Bohn, of Golconda, Ill.; Mrs. Euphrasia Graham, of Seattle, Wash.; Mrs. Ole McCall, of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. Carol Berkey and Miss Edna Berkey, of this city. The funeral was held from the home at 2 o'clock this afternoon, attended by many close friends of the deceased. Rev. L. N. Adrian, of Huntley, Ill., an old friend of the family, had charge of the services.

Personal.
A. D. Murphy, who has made Monroe his home for a number of years, has gone to Astoria, S. D., where he owns a quarter section of land, on which he will reside.

Miss Martha Hungey is making a visit to relatives in Elgin and Chicago.

Mrs. S. P. Schadel is the guest of relatives in Freeport.

JOHNSTOWN MAN TAKES CHICAGO GIRL AS BRIDE

Joseph Caldo and Miss Laura Field
Were Married Last Wednesday Night.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Johnstown, March 2.—The marriage of Miss Laura Field of Chicago, and Joe Caldo of Johnstown, Pa., occurred Wednesday noon, March 2nd at the home of the bride's parents in Chicago, and the happy couple started for Eau Claire, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will make their home on his father's farm. Friends join in wishing them happiness to go with them down their walk in life.

Entertained.
Mrs. E. Verbeck entertained a company of 26 young friends Saturday evening in honor of Miss Louise Dunham. Games and music formed the evening's amusements and a fine supper was served. All report a good time.

Personal.
Willis Fellows of Jansville is assisting with the work at Wm. Child's. Fred, Herb and family moved Wednesday to their new home east of Whitefish.

It. W. Taylor made a business trip to Elkhorn Thursday morning.

Mrs. R. W. Taylor visited relatives in Delavan last Thursday.

FAREWELL PARTY TO DEPARTING NEIGHBORS

Some Sixty Friends of Mr. and Mrs.
Andrew Nichols Were Entertained at Their Home in Porter.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Porter, March 2.—About sixty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nichols spent Tuesday evening at their home. The party was given as a farewell to them as they are soon to move to Footville. The time was spent in dancing and the music was furnished by Messrs. Ford and Smart. At eleven-thirty a tempting repast was served. Mr. Smart, in his pleasing manner, presented Mr. and Mrs. Nichols with a neat little suit of money. The guests departed for their homes after having spent a very pleasant evening and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Nichols success in their new home.

Personal.
Mrs. Albert Christen spent Monday with Mrs. Mary McCarthy.

Mrs. Tom Stearns spent Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. Fossenden.

Miss Mamie Murray is spending a few days with her sister, Mrs. A. Nichols.

The Misses Catherine and Helen Lay and brother, Leo, spent Sunday at the home of John Hyland.

John Hyland delivered tobacco to Edgerton on Wednesday.

The auction sale at Mr. Wilder's on Monday drew a large crowd.

Miss Jennie Frusher is visiting relatives in this vicinity.

"Mad Parliament."
The name said parliament was given to the parliament which assembled at Oxford in the year 1253, and broke out into open rebellion against Henry III. The king was declared deposed, and the government was vested in the hands of 24 councilors, with Simon de Montfort at their head.—New York American.

Starfish Defies Capture.

CALEDONIAN SOCIETY ELECTED OFFICERS

Board of Directors and All Officers
Elected Yesterday Afternoon.

Officers and directors of the Caledonian Society were elected at the annual business meeting of the society in the Caledonian rooms yesterday. Other business matters were brought before the organization, including the presentation of the reports of the secretary and treasurer for the past year. On Saturday the directors will meet and select the president. The officers and directors named yesterday were: Jesse Earle, vice-president; John H. Jones, secretary; Archie Reid, Jr., treasurer; P. K. Caldwell, librarian; and James Scott, Dr. James Mills, J. B. Lundy, P. J. Mount, James W. Scott, P. K. Caldwell and James Shearer, directors.

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED ON FIFTEENTH BIRTHDAY

Friends of Frank Linde Helped Him
Celebrate Last Tuesday Evening
—News of Interest.

(Special to the Gazette.)
Town Line, Deloit and Rock, March 2.—Several young people of the neighborhood successfully carried out a well planned surprise upon Frank Linde, Tuesday evening, on the occasion of his fifteenth birthday anniversary. Music, games and a general good time was indulged in until midnight. Elegant refreshments were served during the evening. Frank was the recipient of several appropriate gifts. Those present were: The Misses Sara Bridgman, Jessie Walters, Maylin Lunde, Leone Mueller, Mary Lunde, George Walters, Al and Clifford, Fred Eddy, Irwin Wachlin, Herman, Edging, Alder Jackson, Frank Linde, and Mrs. Ben Garcke.

Personal.
Miss Linda Lummehart of Ribwood, Wis., is spending several days at the home of her aunt, Mrs. O. N. Haugen.

Mrs. D. Dehling visited Jansville relatives a couple of days last week. Those scholars in Dist. No. 2, Beloit and Rock, (Miss Sara Bridgman, teacher) who have been neither absent nor tardy for the first six months of the school year are, Anna Knopas and Stuart Thorne.

John Loeffler, who bought the J. H. Bay farm last fall, while hauling a load of hogs to Jansville a week ago last Monday, lost the misfortune to have one of his horses taken seriously sick. Being unable to get it home it was left in a barn where it was left over a week, when it was thought best to shoot it. Being a good horse it is quite a loss to its owner.

Moving seems to be the order of the day, as is unusual at this season of the year. Last Saturday, R. B. Humphrey, John Spersrud, Henry Knopas and George Walters moved the household goods of Robt. Martin to Beloit. Mr. Larrabee of Milwaukee will soon move onto the farm just vacated by Mr. Martin. O. N. Haugen is moving to the J. R. Jones farm in the town of Beloit, which Mr. Haugen has just purchased. Carl Angeli will move to the Anthony Dixon farm in the town of Rock. Fred Rupprecht has gone from the Ed. Rice place to Lako Mills, while Claus Good has moved to the farm vacated by Mr. Rupprecht. Jacob Geeser has gone onto the farm known as the Haug farm on the Allen road.

Ed. Duncan, John Spersrud and R. B. Humphrey shipped hogs from Astoria last Tuesday.

Mary and Frank Linde spent Sunday with their sister, Mrs. Ben Garcke. (Born, Feb. 25, to Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Menthey, Riverbend farm, a son.)

ORCHESTRA MONDAY IN TWO CONCERTS

Much Interest Displayed in the Coming of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Jansville as a musical center is to be demonstrated on Monday when the Minneapolis Symphony orchestra appears at the Myers theatre in two concerts. One in the afternoon, at four for the school children, and the other in the evening at eight. That the affair promises to be a society event is demonstrated by the following list of ladies who have consented to act as patronesses:

Meadows, J. P. Swaney, A. C. Houch, Helen Sherer, H. H. Jackson, H. H. Hays, J. L. Wilcox, A. Lovejoy, G. C. Hyde, John Rexford, Matheson Saverhill, George Elford, Sherer, W. W. Wheelock, Burnham, F. Houghton, Arthur Harris, Miss Pond, Korst, C. V. Kereh, Muggleton, Wm. Newhouse, Gestrach, Sutherland, O. D. Bates, Wills, Parke.

The matinee performance is for the school children and a special price of twenty-five cents is made for them. The following is the program for this musical feast:

1. March Militaire.....Schubert
2. Overture "Merry Wives of Win-doh".....Nielsen
3. Spring Song for Strings and Harp.....Mendelssohn
4. (a) Value triage.....Shelton
(b) Preludium.....Jagnerfeldt
5. Violin—Richard Czerwinsky.
6. Pizzicati from Suite "Sylvia"
.....Strauss
- Celesta: Adelmour M. Hoskins.

in Nova Scotia.

Amherst, N. S., March 3.—The deflection of a score of mechanics from the ranks of the strikers at the Spring Hill mines of the Dominion Steel company was followed by a riotous demonstration, participated in by nearly 500 strike sympathizers, in which James Sharp, manager of the mine, was injured. Troops were called out, but before the soldiers arrived the homes of the mechanics had been wrecked. When the troops appeared the strikers were quickly cleared.

CHAPTER IX.

THE BANK AND FILE.

CONSIDERABLY to his surprise and no less to his satisfaction, the newly appointed "division counsel," as his title ran, was not required to take over the old legal department offices in the second story of the station building, where all the other offices of the company were located. Instead he was directed to fit up a suit of rooms in Temple court, the capital's most pretentious uptown skyscraper, and there was something more than a hint that the item of first cost need not be too closely considered.

It was the vice president himself, writing from Chicago, who authorized the new department and bestowed the purple strings. He wrote:

"Don't be afraid of spending a little money. Make your uptown office as attractive as you may and arrange matters with Ackerton so that you will not be burdened with too much of the routine legal work. A successful legal representative will be a good asset, as I am sure you are, and will extend the circle of the company's acquaintance as rapidly and as widely as possible. Your appointment will be fully justified when you shall have made your uptown office a place where the good citizens of the capital and the state can drop in for a cordial word with the company's spokesman and for a better mutual understanding of the facts.

Acting upon this suggestion, Mount opened the Temple court headquarters and threw himself energetically into the indicated field. Ackerton, a technical expert with a needle-like mind and the state code at his fingers' ends, was left in charge of the working offices in the railroad building, with instructions to apply to his chief only when he needed specific advice.

At the uptown headquarters Mount gave himself wholly to the pleasant task of making friends. With a good store of introductions upon which to make a beginning and with the open handed, whole souled camaraderie of the west to help along the list of acquaintances grew with amazing rapidity.

For the three or four weeks after Mrs. Mount had whisked the Anneses away to Wartree Hall and the habitat of the megolodurine, the newly appointed "social secretary" for the railroad, as Honoria had dubbed him, refused no invitations, never inquiring whether they were extended to his father's son, to the railroad company's legal chief or to Evan Mount in his proper person.

During this social interval he saw little of his father, though he still occupied his share of the private dining room unit at the Inter-Mountain. Part of the time, as he knew, the senator was at Wartree Hall, looking after his huge landed estate and helping to entertain the visitors from Massachusetts. But now and again the father came and went, and occasionally there was a dinner for two in the hotel cafe, with a little good natured rivalry from the senator's side of the table.

"Got you chasing your feet right lively in the social merry-go-round these days, haven't they, son? Like it as far as you've got?" asked the ex-cattle king one evening.

"It's all in the day's work," laughed the younger man. "I'll need all the 'pull' I can get a little later on, won't I?"

"I shouldn't wonder if you did, son; I reckon you're doing pretty good work. Was it McVickar's idea or your own—this sudden splash into the social water bowl?"

"I don't mind telling you that it is a part of the new policy," returned the social splasher, still smiling. "We are out to make friends this time, friends who will know just what we are doing and why we are doing it."

"If you mean the senator," "So publicity's the word, is it?"

"Yes, publicity is the word. The Gordon people say they are going to show us up. There won't be anything to show up when the time comes. We are going to beat them to the hills."

"You can't do the circus act—ride two horses at once and do the same stunt on both, son," the senator remarked gravely. "If you're really going to put the saddle and bridle on the publicity nag you've got to turn the other one out of the corral."

"It is already turned out," asserted the young man, not affecting to misunderstand. "We buy no votes in this campaign."

The stout assertion was good as far as it went. The new division counsel made it and believed it. But a little later he could not help wondering if he had been altogether candid in making it.

The offices in the uptown skyscraper were not exclusively a railroad social center where the disinterested voter could come and have the facts laid out to him without fear or favor on the part of the ladder. They had come to be also a rallying point for a heterogeneous crowd of ward workers, wire-pullers and small politicians, most of whom were anxious to be employed or retained as henchmen.

Some of these "stretcher men," as Mount contemptuously called them, had been employed in past campaigns; others were still the beneficiaries of the railroad, holding payroll places which Mount acutely suspected were chiefly sinecures.

"Tactfully" this contingent of strikers and henchmen had been greatly augmented, and it was beginning to make its demands more emphatic. A dozen times a day Mount had the worn phrase "nothing for nothing" dinned into his ears, and he was already suspecting that his office had been made a dumping ground for the other departments.

Seeing Gantry, Mount took an early opportunity of saying:

"See here, Dick; you fellows downtown are making my office a cesspool, and I won't stand for it. Garrigue, that saloon keeper in the second ward, came up today to ask for a free ticket to Worthington and return, and when I pinned him down he admitted that you sent him to me."

"I did," said Gantry, grinning. "Why otherwise have we got a postgraduate, double certificated political manager, I'd like to know?"

"I guess we may as well fight this out right here and now, Dick," said Mount coolly. "I'm not chief vote buyer for the Transcontinental company."

"Who said you were?" retorted the traffic manager.

"It says itself if I am to cut the pie and hand out pieces of it to these grubstakers that you and Carson and Bentley and Kitzinger are sending to me."

This time Gantry's grin was playful, but behind it there was a shrewd flash of the Irish blue eyes that Mount did not see.

"I guess the company will be willing to furnish a few small pies if you think you need them to go along with your Temple court office fittings," he said.

"Ah!" said Mount calmly, giving the exclamation the true Boston intonation.

"I'm going to fire them out neck and neck."

"You are either too shrewd or not quite shrewd enough, Dick. You covered that up with a laugh so that I might take it as a joke if I happened to be too thick skinned to take it in its proper earnest. Let us understand each other. We are fighting in the open in this campaign. Publicity is the word. I have Mr. McVickar for my authority. Anybody who wants to know anything about the railroad company's business in this state can learn it for the asking and at first hand. Secrecy and all the various brands of political skulduggery that have been admitted in the past are to be shown the door. This is the intimation that was made to me. Wasn't it made to you?"

Gantry did not reply directly to the direct demand. On the other hand, he very carefully refrained from answering it in any degree whatsoever.

"You have your job to hold down and I have mine," he returned. "What you say goes as it lies, of course, but I shouldn't be too hard on the little brothers if I were you."

"If by the 'little brothers' you mean the pie eaters I'm going to fire them out neck and crop, Richard. They make me excessively weary."

Gantry's playful mood fell away from him like a castoff garment.

"I don't quite believe I'd do that if I were you, Evan. There are pie eaters on both sides in every political contest, and while they can't do any harm any great amount of good, they can often do a good bit of harm. I wouldn't be too hard on them if I were you."

"What would you do, or, rather, what did you do when you were managing the state campaign two years ago?" inquired Mount pointedly.

"I cut the pie," said the traffic manager simply.

"In other words, you let this rascal blackmail you and incidentally put a big black mark against the company's good name."

"Oh, no; I wouldn't put it quite that strong. Not many of these little fellows ask or expect money. A free ride now and then on the railroad is about all they look for."

"But you can't give them that under the interstate commerce law," protested the purist.

"Not outside of the state, of course. But inside of the state boundaries it's our own business."

"You mean it was our own business previous to the passage of the state rate law two years ago," corrected Mount.

"It is our own business to this good day—in effect. That part of the law has been a complete dead letter from the day the governor signed it. Why, bless your innocent heart, Evan, the very men who argued the loudest and voted the most spitefully for it came to me for their return tickets home at the end of the session. Of course we kept the letter of the law. It says that no 'free passes' shall be given. We didn't issue passes. We merely gave them tickets out of the case and charged them up to expense."

"Faugh!" said Mount. "You make me sick. Gantry, it's that same childish whipping of the devil around the stump by the corporation, an expensive money-losing advertisement."

Mount that wouldn't deceive the most ignorant voter that ever cast a ballot—it's that very thing that has stirred the whole nation up to this unreasoned fight against corporate capital. Don't you see it?"

Gantry shrugged his shoulders.

"I guess I take the line of the least resistance—like the majority of them," was the colorless reply. "When it comes to practical politics—"

"Don't say 'practical politics' to me, Dick," rasped the reformer. "We've got the strongest argument in the world in the fact that the present law is an unfair one, needing modification or repeal. We mustn't spoil that argument by becoming lawbreakers ourselves and descending to the methods of the grafters and the machine politicians the country over. If you have been sending these pie eaters to me, don't do it any more. I have no use for them, and they won't have any use for me after I open up on them."

"I don't believe I'd do anything rash," said Gantry.

Dating from this little heart to heart talk with the traffic manager, Mount began to carry out the new policy—"the starvation policy," as it soon came to be known among the would be henchmen. The result was not altogether reassuring.

Many of the small grafters were on the payroll of the railroad company, and Mount was soon definitely assured of what he had before only suspected—that they were merely nominal employees, given a payroll standing so that they might be an excuse for giving them free transportation and a retainer in the form of wages, if needful.

In many cases the ramifications of the petty graft were exasperatingly intricate. For example, one Thomas Gryson, who was on the payroll as a mechanic's helper in the repair shops, demanded free transportation across the state for eight members of his "family." Questioned closely, he admitted that the "family" was his only ally by a figure of speech; that the relationship was entirely political.

Mount promptly refused to recommend the issuing of employees' passes for the eight, and the result was an immediate call from Bentley, the division master mechanic.

"About that fellow Gryson," Bentley began. "Can't you manage some way to get him transportation for his Jonesboro crowd? He is going to make trouble for us if you don't."

Mount was justly indignant. "Gryson is on your payroll," he retorted. "Why don't you recommend the passes on account of the motive power department, if he is entitled to them?"

"I can't," admitted the master mechanic. "I am held down to the issuing of passes to employees traveling on company business only. We can stretch it a little sometimes, of course, but we can't make it cover the whole earth."

"Neither can I," Mount exploded. "Let it be understood, once for all, Mr. Bentley, that I am not the scapegoat for all the other departments. I have cut it off short. I am not recommending passes for anybody."

"But, suffering Scott, Mr. Mount, we've simply got to take care of Tom Gryson! He's the boss of his ward, and he has influence enough to turn even our own employees against us!"

"Influence!" scolded the young man from the east. "How does he acquire his influence? It is, merely another illustration of the vicious circle. You put into his hands the price of the club with which he proceeds to knock you down. Let me tell you what I'm telling everybody. If we want a square deal we've got to set the example by being square."

The master mechanic went away, alienated, but not convinced. A week later Gantry, who in appearance was a typical tough and in reality was a postgraduate of the lawless mining camps of the Carmelino hills, sauntered into Mount's office with an insolent taunt in his mouth.

"Well, pardner, we got them dicker birds over to Jonesboro after so long a time, and no thanks to you, neither. I just blew in to tell you that I'm going to hit you again about day after tomorrow, and if you don't come across there's going to be something doing—see?"

Mount sprang from his chair and forgot to be polite.

"You needn't come to me the day after tomorrow or any other time," he rasped. "I'm through with you and your tribe. Get out!"

After Gryson had gone, muttering threats and curses, the young campaign manager had an attack of moral nausea. It seemed such a huge waste of time and energy to traffic and chafe with these petty scoundrels. Thus far every phase of the actual political problem seemed to be merely degrading, and he was beginning to long keenly for an opportunity to do some really worthy thing.

Notwithstanding his ideals were still unshaken. He still clung to the belief that the corporation, which was created by the law and could exist only under the protection of the law, must of necessity be a law-abiding entity. It was unfair to hold it responsible for the disgraceful political methods of those whom it could never completely control.

It was on the day of Gryson's visit, as it chanced, that Mount was given his first opportunity of entering the wider field. A letter from one of the party chieftains in a distant mining town brought an invitation of the kind he had been waiting for. He was asked to participate in a joint debate at the campaign opening in the town in question, and he was so glad of the chance that he instantly wired his acceptance.

That evening at the cafe dinner at the Inter-Mountain he found his father waiting for him and in a burst of confidence told him of the invitation.

"That's good," was the son's even toned comment. "Gives you a little chance to shine, doesn't it?"

"That's the thing I want," said Mount. "I've got to get some public speaking, and I've got to get some public speaking."

"Why, yes. He intimated that there might be some public speaking," admitted the younger man.

"Well, what all are you going to tell these Ophir fellows when you get over there, son?" asked the veteran quizzically. "Going to offer 'em all from passes anywhere they want to go if they'll promise to vote for the railroad candidates?"

"Not this year," was the laughing reply. "As I told you a week or so ago we've stopped all that."

"McVickar has told you it was stopped?"

The newly deflected political manager tried to be strictly truthful.

"I have had but one interview with Mr. McVickar, but in that I gave me to understand that my recommendations would be given due consideration, and I have said my say pretty emphatically."

The senator's smile was not decisive. It was merely bland.

"Set on 'em good and hard, did you?"

"That's right, son. Never be afraid to say what you mean and to say it straight. Don't forget that when you're making your appeal to the horny handed sons of toil over at Ophir, give 'em straight facts and back up the facts with figures—if you happen to have the figures. When do you put out for the camp?"

"Tonight at 9:30. I can't get there in time if I wait for the morning train." Then, discarding the political topic abruptly, "What do you hear from Professor Anners?"

"Oh, he's having the time of his life. I got him a state permit and scrapped him up a bunch of pick and shovel men, and he is digging out those fossil skeletons by the wagon load."

"And Miss Anners?" pursued Patrick's lover.

"I shouldn't wonder if she was having the time of her life too. I've given her the little four seated car to call her own while she is out here, and she and Honoria go carousing around the country, breaking the speed limit every minute in the day, I suppose."

"I'm glad you are giving her a good time," said Evan, and he looked glad. Then he added regretfully: "I wish I could get a chance to chase around a little with them. I have seen almost nothing of them since they came west. I should think Mrs. Mount might bring Patricia down to the city once in awhile."

"Perhaps the young woman doesn't want to come," laughed the senator. "You told me you hadn't got her tag, son, and I'm beginning to believe it. What has she got against you, anyway?"

"Nothing, save that I don't fit into her scheme for her life work."

"It's too bad you're going out of town tonight, son. Honoria phoned me a little spell ago that she and Patricia would be driving down after dinner to take in the Weatherford reception. You'll make 'em, won't you?"

"Don't that just my infernal luck!" lamented Evan; then, "Give them my love and tell them I hope they will stay until I get back."

The senator rose and gripped the hand of his son-in-law. "Shall I say that to both of 'em?" he asked, with the

"One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Morrill Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly afflicted may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by the Rollable Drug Co., druggists, members of American Drug & Press Association.

PIMPLES CURED In Ten Days, or your money back

Any one who has pimples, boils, black heads, liver spots, open sores and eruptions should know it is because of bad blood. The circulation has become contaminated with matter that has diseased the blood, which is being forced out of the system through the pores of the skin. This condition cannot be cured unless you remove the cause. Bin-Ter Complexion Tablets purify the blood, strengthen the system and make your skin healthy, thus removing your complexion to its clear, youthful appearance. If Bin-Ter don't cure you we will return your money.

Under the purifying and tonic effect of Bin-Ter Complexion Tablets the system will be built up and your skin cleared, usually in about ten days. Sold and recommended by Baker & Son, Druggists, Bond 236, to Bin-Ter Laboratory, 135 E. Washington St., Chicago, for large sample.

Do you realize it is better to be safe than sorry, that it is the best policy to lock the stable door before the horse is stolen?

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy cured Mrs. C. C. Gokey, of a stubborn case of heart disease, such as thousands are now suffering with. Read what she says:

"Before I began taking Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy I had been suffering from heart trouble for over five years. I had grown so weak that it was impossible for me to do thirty minutes work in a whole day. I suffered intense pains in my left side and under the left shoulder blade. I could not sleep on the left side, and was so short of breath that I thought I should never be able to take a full breath again. The least excitement would bring on the most distressing palpitation. I had scarcely taken a half-bottle of the Heart Remedy before I could see a marked change in my condition. I began to sleep well, had a good appetite, and improved so rapidly that when I had taken six bottles I was completely cured."

MRS. C. C. GOKEY, Northfield, Vt.

If you have any of the symptoms Mrs. Gokey mentions, it is your duty to protect yourself.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy is what you need. If the first bottle fails to benefit, your money is returned. Ask your druggist.

Dead Capital, Eh? We wonder if there is not more dead capital buried in the temples, churches, boarding places and other treasure houses of the world than is in circulation in coin or currency.

And Hathaway—will he be here? "He is here. Gantry has turned him down, according to instructions, and he is clanking about in the air, trying to get a fresh hold. I bluffed him—told him he'd have to make his peace with you for something. I didn't know what, before I could talk to him."

Miss Anners was watching the elevator lights glow and darken as the car descended, and the wife's voice sank to a whisper.

"He will be at the Weatherford?" she inquired eagerly.

"He is sure to be. I told him you would be there."

"The small platter nodded approval. 'Give us half an hour to dress and have the car ready,' she directed, and then the senator put the two into the elevator and turned away to finish his cigar.

"One Touch of Nature Makes the Whole World Kin."

When a rooster finds a big fat worm he calls all the hens in the farm yard to come and share it. A similar trait of human nature is to be observed when a man discovers something exceptionally good—he wants all his friends and neighbors to share the benefits of his discovery. This is the touch of nature that makes the whole world kin. This explains why people who have been cured by Morrill Cough Remedy write letters to the manufacturers for publication, that others similarly afflicted may also use it and obtain relief. Behind every one of these letters is a warm hearted wish of the writer to be of use to someone else. This remedy is for sale by the Rollable Drug Co., druggists, members of American Drug & Press Association.

FOR YOUR HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You To Prove At Our Risk.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp are glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore hair growth. Revall "93" Hair Tonic acts scientifically, destroying the germs which are usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed and will not gum nor permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Revall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us and without question or formality we will hand back to you every penny you paid us for it.

We send our endorsement to Revall "93" Hair Tonic and sell it on this guarantee, because we believe it is the best hair tonic ever discovered. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain it only at our store.—The Rexall Store, The Smith Drug Co.

In order to get you to try "Sunkist" Oranges and "Sunkist" Lemons and thus learn their excellent quality, we will send you free the beautiful Rogers Orange Spoon here pictured on receipt of 12 "Sunkist" wrappers and 12c to cover charges, packing, etc.

You will find both "Sunkist" Oranges and Lemons at nearly every dealer's, packed in individual paper wrappers that bear one of the trademarks shown below. If they are not packed thus, they are not the "Sunkist" kind, but an inferior fruit.

"Sunkist" Oranges—Chicest Fruit

"Sunkist" Oranges are California's choicest fruit—the select inspected crop of 5,000 orange groves. No other orange is so sweet, rich and juicy. They are thin-skinned, seedless, fiberless, tree-ripened, firm and solid. All are hand-picked. No fallen, bruised or overripe oranges. Each "Sunkist" is a perfect specimen, as delicious as if plucked fresh from the tree.

Buy "Sunkist" Lemons which are of the same high quality as "Sunkist" Oranges—solid and sound. "Sunkist" Lemons are so juicy that two of them go farther than the average lemon. In the preparation of dessert, sauce and temperance drinks. Tell your dealer you want "Sunkist" Oranges and Lemons.

Says Lawyers Should Advertise

"In Case and Comment" Luther B. Elliott, of New York, writes under the title, "Can a Lawyer Advertise?" saying:

"Notwithstanding the fact that lawyers are not permitted to advertise, every lawyer does advertise himself and his business favorably or unfavorably every day he lives."

And then Mr. Elliott tells when, how, where a lawyer can and should advertise, and he predicts a time when business will demand as a needed convenience, that lawyers run cards in the newspapers giving reliable information in a truthful and dignified way about the lines along which they specialize.

Want Ads Will Sell your last season's model automobile as quickly as anything else. Why shouldn't they? Want Ads reach everybody.

FORTY YEARS AGO

An Earthquake. March 3, 1871.—Several reliable individuals in this city assure us that on Wednesday night, about eleven o'clock, they experienced a jarring of the earth, accompanied by a low rumbling sound, which lasted several seconds. We would like further testimony on this subject so if any one else has been shaken they will confer a favor by reporting the facts.

The Fifth Ward. The amended bill establishing an additional ward in this city passed the senate last night and will probably be put through the assembly today. The amended bill takes from the original third ward that portion south of the river and west of the center of section one, town 2, north of range 12 east, on the line of Union street, and
